FIELD TRIP REPORT – SALAR JUNG MUSEUM

CLASS V

18TH December, 2019

Grade V students were taken to Salar Jung Museum for their annual field trip. Salar Jung Museum is one of the three National Museums of India. This museum is the also the third largest museum in India and it houses a collection of ancient manuscripts, ceramics, metallic artefacts, carpets, sculptures, textiles, paintings and clocks. journey to the
was enjoyed by the
who sang songs
played games.

Their excitement was infectious! At the museum they saw daggers, cutlery, and ornaments and were visibly impressed by the intricate designs and opulence of the era gone by. They felt proud to belong to a culture which boasted of such rich heritage and unique art.

Some of the sections which generated a lot of interested in the students were porcelain artefacts,

daggers, statues, and
the grand clock.

Students had lunch in their buses and had a good time on the way back to school. Though a lot of them had already been to the museum, the experience of seeing the things all over again with their friends and teachers was what made the trip special and memorable.
